

DOMINANT 9TH CHORD

Dominant 9th Chords ● = Root

Diagram 1: Fretboard showing dominant 9th chord fingering in the 12th position. Root (red dot) is on the 12th fret of the low E string. Fingering: 1 on the 12th fret of the A string, 2 on the 12th fret of the D string, and 3 on the 12th fret of the G string. A bracket groups the 12th fret notes on the A, D, and G strings.

Diagram 2: Fretboard showing dominant 9th chord fingering in the 5th position. Root (red dot) is on the 5th fret of the low E string. Fingering: 1 on the 5th fret of the A string, 2 on the 5th fret of the D string, and 3 on the 5th fret of the G string.

Diagram 3: Fretboard showing dominant 9th chord fingering in the 7th position. Root (red dot) is on the 7th fret of the low E string. Fingering: 1 on the 7th fret of the A string, 2 on the 7th fret of the D string, 3 on the 9th fret of the G string, and 4 on the 10th fret of the B string.

Diagram 4: Fretboard showing dominant 9th chord fingering in the 3rd position. Root (red dot) is on the 3rd fret of the low E string. Fingering: 2 on the 3rd fret of the A string, 4 on the 3rd fret of the D string, and 3 on the 3rd fret of the G string.

Diagram 5: Fretboard showing dominant 9th chord fingering in the 10th position. Root (red dot) is on the 10th fret of the low E string. Fingering: 1 on the 10th fret of the A string, 2 on the 10th fret of the D string, and 3 on the 10th fret of the G string.